Goodwill Hawaii's Ola I Ka Hana program equips youth with the skills to achieve their academic, employment and healthy living goals. In a non-traditional classroom setting, youth will acquire the skills necessary to prepare themselves for a successful future. Our individual and group sessions maximize and customize the learning process to each individual learning style. Community service projects provide youth with hands-on experience that develop decision making skills to help them successfully transition into adulthood. Services are individualized based on the youth and their family input. Frequency of services is determined by individual needs. Services may be delivered using information and/or communication technologies in the geographic area(s) we serve.
